

Who Ate My Pie? January Spending Roundup

The beauty of spending a month not leaving my house is that I am not tempted into buying things I don't need . . . the flipside is I discover all sorts of things I never knew I needed.

- Amazon -- light bulbs for kitchen, special kind for can lights that won't melt the fixtures (learned this one from experience, ha?) -- 24.99
- Rite Aid & Amazon Prime Now (as in RIGHT NOW -- I scoffed, but so useful in an urgency) -- surgery stuff -- bandaids, gauze, ice packs, etc. -- 78.49
- Amazon -- half a Pandemic board game, shared with Sweetie Pie -- 13
- Bartells -- shampoo & makeup -- 32.42
- Shell -- gas -- 29.65
- Aveda -- more shampoo; after horrifying/itchifying skin rash from the last attempt, I'm giving up on the cheap stuff -- 43.84
- Wayfair -- two small rugs and non-slip pads, following the heartbreaking observation that Cheddar Pup's aging hips really can't handle the slipperiness any exposed wood floors these days -- 70.92
